

Miami Stories Outreach Activation Option – Mini Booth

Miami has always been a city of stories – told on front porches, across kitchen tables, and on street corners. Since 2009, the Museum of Miami has been listening through our oral history initiative, Miami Stories. Locals are legends here. Through written reflections, audio, and video recordings, Miami Stories captures stories from anyone and everyone about life in the Magic City. Each voice added to the archive is a thread in the larger fabric of Miami's past, present, and future.

The Miami Stories “Mini Booth” outreach activation allows the museum to capture stories and encourage storytelling at local events. The flexible setup is easy to install and breakdown and can adapt to fit in most spaces.

Our “Mini Booth” outreach activation includes the following items:

Digital Pixcase - Touchscreen device where attendees can read or listen to stories from our online archive.

“Story Dice” Game - A small cube featuring six prompts for a low-pressure, interactive activity. Participants can roll the dice and respond to a question by writing or drawing on the whiteboard.

Mini Recording Booth- Our portable, height-adjustable pop-up booth where participants are invited to share their stories. They can either record their responses independently using the provided prompts or participate in a short interview-style recording with one of our team members.
